A new Lotta Wenglén releases her fifth solo album

Lotta Wenglén, featuring in swedish movie documentary “Jag är min egen Dolly Parton” is now releasing her fifth album on her own label- Margit Music. The ten songs vibrates of lust and sounds like nothing else that Lotta has done before. She has recorded, produced and mixed the album herself with help from her band: Magnus Sveningsson on bass (The Cardigans), Carolina Carlbom on drums (The Pusjkins) and Måns Wieslander on guitar (Twin Piloda).

Lotta talks about the album:

“Becoming a mother has given me an enormous amount of strength and inspiration. This album took a short time to make. It was like a tornado carried me away. We had so much fun recording it and I’m glad that the humour and playfulness made it through the final mix. Many of the songs where written under and after my pregnancy and talks about my child, cancer and alcoholism. At the same time I talk about letting go of things beyond your controll and just let them happen.

This is music from a new Lotta Wenglén that threw herself into a crazy production idea and where able to pull it through thanks to the musicians by her side. On the album you can also hear Erika Rosén, Cecilia Nordlund, Sofia Härdig and Katharina Nuttall who also helped mixing two of the songs on the album.”
